Turkey Keeping Watch On Developments; Russian May Play Role

TOKYO, Feb. 13.—The Soviet Black Sea fleet, consisting of two battleships, four cruisers, 30 destroyers and 24 submarines is being massed in the Bosphorus, the newspaper Hochi Shinbun reported from Tsuruga today. Two million Red troops are massed on the Turkish and Romanian borders, the paper said.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Reports that at least 400,000—and possibly 600,000—German troops have been massed in Romania, ready to cross the Danube River into Bulgaria and thus bring pressure on Greece, coincided today with advice that the Athens government is balking at a Nazi peace bid.

These advisers said Germany has offered Greece a four-point peace plan, but informed London circles said the Greek government has turned down the offer and is not likely to change its mind.

According to British quarters, terms of the peace plan are:

- 1.—Greece will retain her present gains in Albania.
- 2.—Greece will demobilize her army and declare herself a neutral.
- 3.—Greece will ask for withdrawal of British forces and abandonment by the British of naval and air bases on the island of Crete.
- 4.—Germany will guarantee Greece against further Italian attacks.

By moving troops across Bulgaria, Germany could put itself in position to move against Greece in force if the Athens government fails to come to terms.

Russian Menace Vital

According to information in London, only Russian objections are holding the Germans back from a full-scale invasion of Bulgaria, but it appeared that eventually both Germany and Russia may move into Bulgaria, partitioning it as they partitioned Poland.

It was impossible to obtain in London any exact figure of the number of German troops now in Romania. The London Daily Express said it was believed as many as 600,000 Nazi troops are massed there, ready to enter Bulgaria. The paper added that some quarters predicted these Nazi legions would move this week end, and that Romania is considering evacuating civilians

Willkie Calls On GOP To Support Lease Bill, Defying Political Foes

Recent Visitor To Britain Says Republicans Must Quit Being "Negatives"; New Deal's Domestic Policies Are Attacked

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—From Wendell L. Willkie today went forth a bristling challenge to the Republican party to unite in a program of positive action for aiding Great Britain in its hour of crisis.

The Republican party will follow the Federalists and the Whigs into extinction, Willkie warned at a Republican Day dinner here, if it clings to policies of compromise and negation and isolationism in the present international situation.

Although calling on the Republicans to cooperate with President Roosevelt in giving aid to Britain, the man who carried the Republican banner in the last presidential election caustically criticized the New Deal's domestic policies. The Roosevelt administration, Willkie charged, is maintaining itself in power by political pressure and government spending. He also reiterated his old campaign charge that the New Deal scuttled the London Economic Conference in 1933 claiming it might have spared the world its present war.

Willkie's calls for speedy and effective aid to Great Britain drew prolonged applause and cheers and at the end of his brief address the old campaign cry of "We Want Willkie" rang out in the ballroom. Nominally the head of the GOP, Willkie took a bold stand in his extemporaneous address against Republican congressional leaders who oppose the administration's lease-lend bill which Willkie has endorsed.

The wounded man's brother, Chester, 19, of Ashland, Ky., and his wife, 26, were arrested by detectives who chased a bus and finally caught up with it south of Circleville. The detectives said Chester Murray had a 22 calibre revolver in his pocket.

The shooting occurred in the rear of 209 East Main Street, Columbus, Wayne Murray first reported to police he had been robbed, but later accused his brother of shooting him.

Police and sheriff's officers reported they had had no information concerning the chase. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said his department had received no notification either by telephone or by police radio concerning the incident.

LEGION TO LEASE CLUB ROOMS AT 210 NORTH COURT

Legionnaires at their meeting Wednesday night in Memorial Hall authorized their housing committee under the chairmanship of Earl Smith to lease the second floor of The Daily Herald building, 210 North Court Street, as club rooms for the organization. Action to bring the deal to a close will begin at once, Chairman Smith said Thursday.

The building space includes six small rooms and one large room, all of which have to be furnished, the cost running between $2,500 and $3,000, the committee estimates. With work on the rooms starting immediately, the job should be completed in a month.

The building will provide lounging and recreational space for Legionnaires. Regular meetings probably will continue to be held in Memorial Hall, Mr. Smith said, the new space being used exclusively for club activities.

The lease is expected to run for five years.

SENATE FOREIGN COMMITTEE FOR LEND ACT, 15-8

Approval Voted In Morning Session After Rejecting Major Amendments

U. S. INTERESTS GUARDED

Four Wide Powers Listed In Act; Barkley Expects 2 To 1 Margin

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted a favorable report on a modified lease-lend bill today as Majority Leader Barkley predicted passage by more than a two to one vote, probably by March 1. The vote was 15 to 8.

The action came only a few minutes after the Senate Foreign Committee had beaten down by 13 to 9 an attempt to write a provision in the measure barring overseas use of American troops.

Rejecting major amendments proposed by Republican Leader Wendell L. Willkie, the committee also flatly turned down specific proposals of Republicans adopting a middle of the road policy of aiding England.

This action came as it was learned that President Roosevelt had assured Democratic and Republican congressional leaders recently that he intended to take care adequately of American interests.

The President's plans, it is understood, call for assurances from the British government that, in case of German invasion and seizure of England, British warships would not fall into German hands, but would sail for America.

Some 74 old U. S. destroyers and ten light cruisers would be made available for a trade with Britain for heavy warships, such as the giant new battleship King George V.

In such a trade, British delivery might not be made until after the war. But, meantime, the conferees understood the President would insist on (Continued on Page Eight)

UNCLE SAM SENDS ARMY MAN TO EIRE CAPITAL

Americans In Shanghai Warned To Quit District

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—For the second time in recent weeks the United States consulate general in Shanghai today circularized American citizens, asking them to leave Shanghai immediately.

The consulate said the State Department had urged that all American women and children and men whose presence is not essential evacuate, "in the interest of the safety and convenience of American nationals and of national security."

The circulars added that special evacuation ships will not be sent to Shanghai and that Americans therefore should take immediate advantage of available transportation facilities.

American citizens in Japan and Indo-China received similar advice from United States authorities.

Increasing tension led to a flood of reports in Shanghai. One rumor was that American ships would soon cease to call at Japanese ports as well as Shanghai or Hong Kong, another that vessels of the Canadian Pacific Line would be similarly affected.

Meanwhile, two Soviet ships which recently put into Shanghai were in drydock preparatory to evacuating all German residents to Vladivostok.

The wrecked apartment building, valued at $15,000, caved in when the raging surf washed out its foundation. Six other apartment houses adjacent to the wrecked building were reported in danger and were evacuated by police.

Authorities cut off gas and water mains and shut off electric power in the danger area as waves broke high over the strand.

BRITAIN LOSES WAR MATERIAL

Berlin Claims 13 Vessels In Convoy Sent To Bottom In Major Offensive Near Portugal; Several Big Liners Included In Toll

SUBMARINE WARFARE TO BE PUSHED

'Big Berthas' Hurl Shells Across Channel; Reich's Raiders Bomb Troops In Libya

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—Sinking 13 armed merchant vessels, German surface raiders attacked and scattered a British convoy in the Atlantic Ocean west of Portugal, it was announced today.

Several of the 13 sunken vessels were officially described as large, ocean-going ships which were carrying war materials to England.

It was estimated that the ships sent to the bottom totalled about 100,000 tons.

Several liners ranging from 18,000 to 24,000 tons were believed included in the convoy, which evidently was attacked by German planes and submarines after the initial surface raider assault.

Thus it was expected by German quarters that the sinkings may even considerably exceed 100,000 tons.

Berlin authorities termed the spectacular naval blow the opening gun of the German spring offensive at sea.

It was indicated the German warships surprised one of the largest convoys yet dispatched across the Atlantic and sent to the bottom millions of dollars worth of valuable war materials, in addition to valuable shipping tonnage.

Blockade Tightening
German military circles said the action was part of a systematic, large-scale tightening of the blockade around England and that it was closely related to recent German air force and U-boat attacks on British convoys off the Portuguese coast.

Big Guns Active

DOVER, Eng., Feb. 13.—German "big Berthas" on the French coast hurled shells across the Straits of Dover at 10-minute intervals this morning.

Drizzling rain and fog obscured visibility. It was believed the shells were coming from a battery at Cap Gris Nez.

Transport Sinks

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The London Daily Mail reported from the Swiss border today that the Italian 17,987-ton liner Conte Rosso has been sunk by a mine or torpedo while transporting Italian troops in the Mediterranean.

Raiders Hit West

LONDON, Feb. 13.—A few German raiders dropped bombs on west coast sections of Britain during the night, but casualties and damage were light.

An Air Ministry communique said: "There was slight air activity near the western coasts last night, but very few bombs were dropped. Isolated incidents involving slight damage and a few persons injured were reported in southwest and south Wales."

After midnight a few raiders were reported near the British west coast port of Liverpool.

ROME, Feb. 13.—German planes yesterday bombed British troops in Libya, the Italian high command announced today.

10 MEN CALLED AS NEXT QUOTA

Period Beginning March 2 May See First Draftees Go Into Camp

An unofficial call from State Selective Service headquarters has asked Pickaway County to furnish ten men for the period beginning March 2, local Selective Service officials revealed Thursday.

Although the local draft board has no way of knowing how many volunteers it will receive before that date, it is generally expected that the county's first draftees will be included in the call.

Next volunteer to leave the county will be Harrison Hill, 217 West Huston Street, the county's first Negro registrant to be called. He will leave next Thursday.

MINES SCoured IN SEARCH FOR MISSING CO - E D

SILVER CITY, N. M., Feb. 13.—Abandoned mine tunnels in this once-famous silver producing region of southwestern New Mexico were combed today by posses searching for 18-year-old Lenore Roos, a co-ed at State Teachers College, who left a note in her room voicing a threat to "jump into a mine shaft."

Following clues from three notes which she left, sheriff's deputies and college students traced Miss Roos to an old tunnel in Chloride Flat, once the scene of a silver boom.

The girl, daughter of Alfred Roos, mining engineer at Vanadum, disappeared from her dormitory Tuesday night. Classmates said she had appeared despondent.

SOUTHERN OHIO ELECTRIC GIVES ITS APPROVAL

Trial Demonstration Of New Bulbs At Mound Street Corner Watched

DEFINITE ACTION LOOMS

Six Year Contract Expected To Be Voted Following Verbal Agreement

Its economy program calling it into special session Wednesday night, City Council after conferring with officials of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company expressed belief it could knock nearly $3,000 from its annual street lighting expense by placing new type lower-candlepower lamps in all the city's street lights.

Cost of street lighting during 1940 for the 184 street lights in the city was $7,093. Light company officials estimate that with the new type lights, the annual cost will be around $4,000.

After inspecting demonstration lights placed on Mound Street, comparing the amount of light produced by the new 100 and the 250 candlepower bulbs with that made by the old 400 candlepower, councilmen returned to the council chamber and instructed light company officials to produce accurate figures for 24 250 candlepower and 160 one hundred candlepower bulbs.

Councilmen plan to place 11 of the 250s in the downtown section between Mound and High or Court Street and between Pickaway and Scioto on Main Street. The 100s will be installed in the outlying sections of the city. Thirteen of the 250s will be placed at railroad crossings in the city and will be paid for by the railroads.

$20 Savings On Each
Light company officials told councilmen that the new 250s would cost about $33.73 a year for each lamp, and the 100s about $23 a year for each lamp, making a saving of approximately $20 on each lamp each year over the old lights. Of the 184 streets now in use in the city, 149 are 400 candlepower, 33 100 candlepower and two 250s. The new bulbs, at least the 100s, probably will be used without globes, since more light may be obtained by their elimination.

Council's vote showed all members favored the plan except Councilman J. D. Mason, who favored installing the new 100s all over the city. The difference in cost between that and the plan proposed by the majority of Council would be about $120 a year. Such a street lighting plan would require a contract corresponding in time to that of the present light-rate ordinance, light company officials told councilmen. The present 10-year ordinance will expire in slightly over six years. The new bulbs, which are processed with a silver coated substance to reflect the light downward, will produce a third more light than the old-type bulbs, the light company claims.

At Council's regular meeting next Wednesday, the light company will have definite figures for the new plan.

Present figures show that the plan will conform with Council's previous action of cutting $3,000 from its general fund appropriation for street lighting.

Governor Asks Return Of Power To People

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13—A call for the return of "dictatorial emergency powers" to the people had been shouted today by Gov. Harlan J. Bushfield, Republican, of South Dakota.

In a Lincoln Day address in Columbus, Governor Bushfield asked that "the governmental ropes of regulation be taken from the neck of industry so that it may live and breathe again, not with the false inspiration of war hysteria, but with the healthful zest of free enterprise."

"We have come to believe," he said "that our democratic machine will function without attention from the only mechanic who can make it work—the people. Any government that attempts to control individual initiative, that interferes with the freedom of the people by regulation and taxation is headed for disaster."

The tall gray-haired governor who twice has led the Republican party to victory in the western state further warned that "the foe who preaches class hatred and belittles and ridicules everything you, I and our forefathers have stood for" is "the enemy who will destroy America if it is ever to fail."

"The hysteria of war," he added, "is sweeping throughout our seaboard cities like an epidemic of uncontrolled smallpox. An invader who is unable to across twenty miles of water in eight months has no chance of attacking us across three thousand miles of ocean."

Governor Bushfield was presented by Governor Bricker, who was host to the visiting governor prior to the banquet.

BANKER'S ROLE IN DEFENSE JOB OUTLINED TO 950

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13 — The place of banking in the coming defense program had been studied today by 950 delegates who attended the annual midwinter meeting of the Ohio Bankers Association.

Greeting the bankers, Governor Bricker emphasized the need of preserving the liberties of the people and pointed to Abraham Lincoln as the great proponent of this philosophy.

Sidney B. Congdon, president of National City Bank of Cleveland, spoke on the defense program.

When the defense program really gets under way, he said, money will be sought by the federal government and then it will become things with her selection of the sparkling marital comedy as her new vehicle.

She returns to the high comedy realms she so long dominated, and she once more wears the gorgeous smart clothes which formerly gave her the reputation of one of the world's best-dressed women. These are in striking contrast to her heavy dramatic work and simple costumes which marked her last two vehicles, "They Knew What They Wanted," and "Vigil in the Night."

Gene Raymond heads the supporting cast in this gay comedy directed by Alfred Hitchcock.

Many a puzzled rookie will learn to his surprise that the army's uniform does not refer to regulation pajamas.

The duty of the banks to meet the demand. The interim, he pointed out, should be employed to study contract forms, risks attached to such loans, etc., in order that the bankers can do the job properly.

COUNCIL MAY REDUCE STREET LIGHT EXPENDITURE BY NEARLY $3,000

SOUTHERN OHIO ELECTRIC GIVES ITS APPROVAL

Trial Demonstration Of New Bulbs At Mound Street Corner Watched

DEFINITE ACTION LOOMS

Six Year Contract Expected To Be Voted Following Verbal Agreement

Its economy program calling it into special session Wednesday night, City Council after conferring with officials of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company expressed belief it could knock nearly $3,000 from its annual street lighting expense by placing new type lower-candlepower lamps in all the city's street lights.

Cost of street lighting during 1940 for the 184 street lights in the city was $7,093. Light company officials estimate that with the new type lights, the annual cost will be around $4,000.

After inspecting demonstration lights placed on Mound Street, comparing the amount of light produced by the new 100 and the 250 candlepower bulbs with that made by the old 400 candlepower, councilmen returned to the council chamber and instructed light company officials to produce accurate figures for 24 250 candlepower and 160 one hundred candlepower bulbs.

Councilmen plan to place 11 of the 250s in the downtown section between Mound and High or Court Street and between Pickaway and Scioto on Main Street. The 100s will be installed in the outlying sections of the city. Thirteen of the 250s will be placed at railroad crossings in the city and will be paid for by the railroads.

820 Savings On Each
Light company officials told councilmen that the new 250s would cost about $33.73 a year for each lamp, and the 100s about $23 a year for each lamp, making a saving of approximately $20 on each lamp each year over the old lights. Of the 184 streets now in use in the city, 149 are 400 candlepower, 33 100 candlepower and two 250s. The new bulbs, at least the 100s, probably will be used without globes, since more light may be obtained by their elimination.

Council's vote showed all members favored the plan except Councilman J. D. Mason, who favored installing the new 100s all over the city. The difference in cost between that and the plan proposed by the majority of Council would be about $120 a year. Such a street lighting plan would require a contract corresponding in time to that of the present light-rate ordinance, light company officials told councilmen. The present 10-year ordinance will expire in slightly over six years. The new bulbs, which are processed with a silver coated substance to reflect the light downward, will produce a third more light than the old-type bulbs, the light company claims.

At Council's regular meeting next Wednesday, the light company will have definite figures for the new plan.

Present figures show that the plan will conform with Council's previous action of cutting $3,000 from its general fund appropriation for street lighting.

Statistics show that there are four persons to every radio receiving set in the United States. One listening, says Zadok Dumbkopf, and the other three wishing he wasn't.

PRICE OF FOOD AFFECTS FARM, CITIES ALIKE

Plans For 1941 Must Take Notice Of Rise Recorded Last December

2.4 JUMP OBSERVED

Rural Man Receives But 83 Cents In 1940 For Goods Worth $1 In 1910-14

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13.—Farmers and city residents alike are concerned daily with the supplies of foods available and the prices for which they are sold, so the report of agricultural economists at Ohio State University that food prices in December, 1940, were 2.4 percent higher than a year previously, and appear likely to rise further, is pertinent information for making 1941 plans.

Reports from consuming centers show that the price rise has not been uniform even in a territory as small as the state of Ohio. The rise in retail food costs during the year was 4.4 percent in Cincinnati, 3.1 percent in Cleveland, and 1.6 percent in Columbus.

The farmer's benefit from rising prices for farm products is reflected in the report on total farm income, which was estimated at $9,094,000,000 for 1940 and was $8,158,000,000 in 1940. Government payments under the agricultural conservation program to farmers declined $41,000,000 in 1940 from the sum paid in 1939.

Farmers received an average of 83 cents in December, 1940 for the same products that would have brought $1 in the period 1910-14. When they went to town last December to buy the things they use on farms, they paid $1.22 for the same goods which would have cost $1 in 1910-14.

Tobacco Doesn't Share

The price rise on farm products was quite general throughout the list, tobacco being about the only major crop that did not share in the improved farm income. Income from meat animals, dairy products, grain, and cotton was up 8 percent each in 1940 from the 1939 totals. Poultry and eggs brought only a little more than in 1939.

The price rise in foods was almost entirely due to improvement in domestic markets. The export market for foods has vanished for an unknown period. Industrial production in the United States stood at 136 in December, 1940, as compared with 100 for the years 1935-39. Workers received a wage of $2.29 in November, 1940, for the amount of work that would have brought them $1 in the years 1910-14.

Economists who study agriculture say there are ample supplies of food in prospect. Crops have been good for several years. Corn, a basic crop in meat and dairy production, is more than plentiful. The carryover on January 1, 1941, was 2,005,000,000 bushels, with 438,000,000 bushels under government loans.

For at least the first half of 1941, there will be large supplies of dairy products, edible fats, wheat, rice, citrus fruits, dried fruits, potatoes, fresh and canned vegetables, and dry beans. Meat supplies may be smaller than the huge totals available in 1940 and there may be fewer eggs than were produced last year.

A handsome house plant can be grown from the avocado seed. It must be suspended in water so that only part of it is immersed. The plant has large, bright green leaves.

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

THE "NOBLE DEMOCRACIES"

The propagandists for war reach a new high when they go into their trance over some of the "noble democracies" of the Old World. Greece is one of the fair sisters they yearn to save from the wolves by American treasure, and, if necessary, by American blood.

The other day General John Metaxas departed this life in Athens. The fact that he was dictator of Greece and will be succeeded by another dictator means nothing to our whirling dervishes who talk much and enlist little. We must have Greece's dictator from the Roman dictator! Aid to the democracies!

Let us look at the record. To begin with, Greece is a monarchy except when her kings lack courage to stay at their posts. Of course, there are such things as constitutional monarchies where the people have a large degree of republican or representative government, as in England. Greece tried democracy for a brief period and found she was unequal to it. The Greeks don't even want self-government.

In April 1924 the Greeks voted for a republic 758,000 to 325,000. A year later General Pangalos seized the government and assumed dictatorial power. He lasted 14 months. Then the general was overthrown by an admiral who ruled without an election for 3 years. In 1929 the Greeks elected a president and re-elected him — once. That was enough.

In some other countries the democrats lost a Man on Horseback. Not the Greeks. In November 1935, in a time of peace, they actually voted to restore the monarchy by a vote of 1,491,992 to 32,454. Only two in one hundred cared enough for a republican form of government to vote to keep it. The King's party carried every precinct. The democrats did not even have a Maine or Vermont. Well, that's their business, not ours.

The next year martial law proclaimed and General Metaxas became dictator. That was four years ago, and three years before Hitler began to shoot. It has continued as an outpost of the British foreign office. The Fascists in Italy abolished the 80 year old Chamber of Deputies but set up in its place a Chamber of Fasci and Corporations with 650 members. It is a sort of Punch and Judy show with Il Duce pulling the strings. Nevertheless, they do go through the motions. The puppets do vote. I'm all for Greek dictator throwing the Italian dictator into the Adriatic. Mussolini played with matches. And that is a serious offense in a powderhouse world. Albania, like Greece, also voted to abolish her republic and establish a monarchy, twelve years ago. President Ahmed Beg Zogu became King Zog. Mussolini upset his majesty in April 1939.

Fellow democrats, ours is a Holy Mission! Our hearts burn with a Noble Zeal! American bayonets must restore King Zog to his throne! We must force Greece to be Free. It is true that corrupt city machines are aggressors against our free institutions; that mass bribery of millions exists; that other millions can find no work except to make guns. But these things can wait. We must put first things first! And in the words of our immortal dead, For-eign-ers are First in War and First in the hearts of Our Countrymen! In the list of the right-honorable democracies we next come to Abyssinia and China. The first at no time had even squatter's rights to the name. China is called a republic but by our standards you would not recognize it. It is a one party affair, as much so as the Nazi party in Germany, or the Communists in Russia. The party appoints the councils which exercise the power of government. Free election of public officials by universal suffrage, as we know it, does not exist.

The war party may get us in.

And will unless we flood Washington with indignant protest. Self defense or world wide imperialism. We understand that. But I am getting jolly well fed up with their comeon that American boys should die once more for foreign democracies, dictators, or Zogs.

Kroger Store Plant Opens

Top: A. J. Boehm, center, meat operator for Kroger's Columbus branch, explains details of the firm's new Tenderay beef plant to Byron Redman, left, branch manager, and E. J. Gerner, branch sales manager. Overhead may be seen parallel rows of the long, tube-like sterilizers which play an important part in the tenderizing process. Below: Miss Mary Stephan, pretty Columbus Kroger employee, visits the plant to learn where tender steaks come from.

Following the opening of Columbus' first Tenderay plant, Kroger stores in this area served from the firm's Columbus branch now are being supplied with beef tenderized by a process discovered and developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research.

The Tenderay process was developed by Dr. M. D. Coulter, of Mellon Institute in Pittsburgh while working under a Kroger fellowship and in cooperation with scientists from Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and the Kroger Food Foundation. It was explained by Byron Redman, Kroger's Columbus branch manager.

As explained by Dr. Coulter, the new tenderizing process hastens natural breakdown of the normally tough connective tissue in beef. This is done at relatively high temperatures and humidity in an atmosphere kept free from mold spores and bacteria by rays of sterilizers developed by Westinghouse scientists. It was pointed out that while the lamps alone, without the other component parts of this patented process have no tenderizing effects on the beef, they are essential in protecting the meat during the process.

Study of the problem of meat tenderization was initiated seven years ago by Albert H. Morrill, president of the Kroger company, and preliminary study was carried on under the direction of C. L. Arnold, Kroger Food Foundation ly high temperatures and humidity. Next the beef is moved to the second room for chilling at a temperature just above freezing. By the time the beef is chilled thoroughly, tenderization has been completed. Finally it is moved to the third and largest room for storage to await transfer to retail stores.

The Columbus plant has been in operation for several weeks on a test basis to correct any possible mechanical difficulties prior to its official opening.

Operated by trained technicians, the new plant brings to the commercial field a laboratory process which is said by authorities to be the most important development in the history of meat processing.

HAWLEY, BALKED BY DEMOCRATS, TO WIN OFFICE

Militant Minority Shows Its Strength, Halting Appointment

RECONSIDERATION SURE

Clevelanders Want Member Of Liquor Board From Their District

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13.—The militant Democratic Senate minority, having forcefully demonstrated its power to checkmate the Republican majority, was expected today to consent to the appointment of Harry E. Hawley, of Mansfield, as a member of the state liquor board.

Hawley was denied confirmation yesterday because the Democrats voted against him and the Republicans, having only 19 elected members, could muster no more than 18 votes with one of their number, Sen. Joseph Jameson, Lorain, refusing to answer the roll call. Jameson did not explain his action.

Hence, the Hawley nomination was rejected by the senate, 17 to 15, Sen. Grant Ward (R-Columbus) changing from "yes" to "no" so he could move to reconsider the unfavorable vote, when it became apparent that the nineteenth vote could not be obtained at once.

Confirmation Expected
Ward's motion to reconsider was left pending until next Wednesday when it was indicated Hawley would be confirmed along with Lowell C. Bodey, Urbana Democrat, re-appointed by Governor Bricker to the liquor board.

The senate unanimously confirmed Earl W. Baird, Columbus Democrat and the third Bricker appointee to the liquor board who succeeds the late William North, Greenville. Baird is a newspaperman and former manager of the Columbus Press Club.

Minority Leader William Boyd (D-Cleveland) explained that members of his party did not object to Hawley personally but resented what he termed an attempt by the Republicans to rush the appointments through the senate without time for investigation of the appointee.

In an exchange with Majority Leader Frank Whittemore (R-Akron), Boyd also dwelt upon his party's resentment at the few committee assignments allowed it by the controlling party.

Other factors known to have motivated the Democratic revolt were:

1. Belief that Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) should have a representative on the liquor board. All seven Cuyahoga senators are Democrats.
2. Determination to show the Republican leaders that the minority is strong enough to compel greater consideration than in the past.
3. Desire to impress on executive appointees to various boards the fact that they owe some appreciation to the senate.

Boyd, in a formal statement, cited that although Cuyahoga County has about one-sixth the total state population and one-third of all liquor permits issued originate there, the governor failed to give the county a member of the liquor board.

Nor is there a board member from any other county in the populous northeastern section, he pointed out. Bodey and Baird are from central Ohio and the fourth member, William Hess, is from Cincinnati.

To Consult Leaders
Boyd insisted that "the larger political units be given considerations" in the making of appointments. "Otherwise," he said, "we shall henceforth consult Democratic leaders with reference to the confirmation of Democratic appointees."

Another prominent Democratic senator complained that in some instances board members, confirmed by the senate, had not cooperated later with members calling at their offices on business.

He cited that legislators are deluged by their constituents with requests for aid in matters handled by the many boards and that not always have board members been as courteous as he felt they should be.

For that reason, this senator said, he considered it unwise to hasten senate confirmations without giving the members time to in-

EMPLOYMENT OF OHIOANS UNDER NYA SETS MARK

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13.—Leo B. Jacobs, administrator of the National Youth Administration for Ohio, today announced that employment of out-of-school youth in NYA has passed an all-time peak of 23,500 Ohio youth, and new youth are being added daily.

Nearly half the group are assigned to shops and production-type work units which prepare youth for possible jobs in defense industries, and most of the balance are in construction work. All NYA work is sponsored by communities and public agencies.

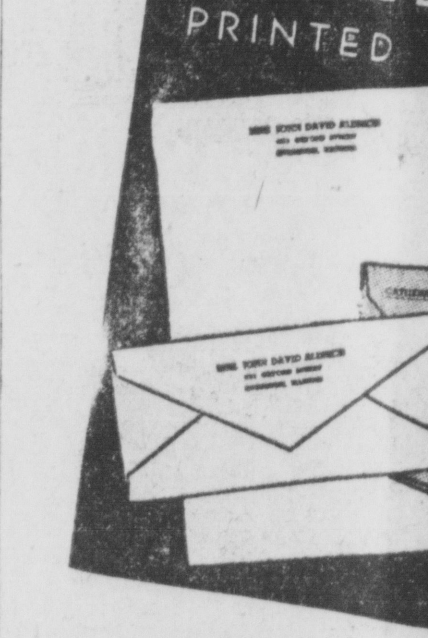

NYA employees are between 18 and 25 years of age, single and out of school. New rulings permit employment, also, of 16 year-old high school graduates. Workers receive marginal salaries, and study courses arranged by public school officials and approved by the Ohio Department of Education.

Ohio areas and their NYA employment break down as follows: Toledo and 6 counties: 2,400; Lima and 17 counties: 1,175; Cincinnati and 9 counties: 4,200; Portsmouth and 11 counties: 3,600; Zanesville and 16 counties: 3,900; Cleveland and 5 counties: 3,500; Akron and 8 counties: 3,100; Columbus and 15 counties: 2,200. There are 153 production units of NYA producing articles daily for public agencies and cities in a racing drive to prepare Ohio youth for jobs in industries with defense orders.

SPEAKER HINTS BRITISH VICTORY

Dr. Gerhard Seger Talks Before Two Groups On Europe's Strife

Dr. Gerhard H. Seger, former member of the German Reichstag and the last speaker on the Circleville Rotary Club's Institute of Understanding, entertained two large audiences at Circleville High School, Wednesday, in his discussion of the world's problems. Dr. Seger addressed school children in the afternoon and spoke before an adult audience in the evening. Frank E. Barnhill, Rotary president, presided at the evening meeting.

Dr. Seger said: "It is my greatest hope that one day it can be said the United States of America is the godfather of the United States of Europe." He gave this as his suggestion of one way in which Europe's continuous strife can be ended.

A firm believer in Britain's ability to win the war, Dr. Seger, was a member of the Reichstag when Hitler was appointed chancellor. He was placed in a concentration camp because he did not believe in the Nazi party and later made his escape to the United States.

Two Reasons Cited

In explaining why he believed Britain would win the war, he pointed to two facts in Britain's favor: 1. Within a reasonable time, with the aid of the United States, the RAF will gain control of the air due to the shortage of oil in Germany; 2. After gaining superiority in the air, the British will invade Europe and will find a majority of the people on their side.

"Germany, which has not had to fight a war on her own soil, will be taken back so greatly that little resistance will be offered," the speaker said.

Following Hitler's defeat, peace will naturally come, and then Dr. Seger stated, the solution to end the repetitions of war in Europe, a treaty should be drawn up to build a United States of Europe. To offer as an example of this idea he pointed out that Switzerland is a democratic nation composed of Italians, Germans, and French who all have kept their own language and customs, he also stated that our own country is composed of many nationalities.

Would Demand Assurance

Our part in this plan, Dr. Seger said, is this "The United States of America will be asked to finance the reconstruction of Europe and this country should not send a single dollar across the ocean until it is agreed the dollar will not be used to start this thing all over again."

Dr. Seger opened his lecture by describing the rise of Hitler in Germany and his work while Hitler was gaining power, stating that Hitler never had the majority of the German people for him and that at the present time

HAWLEY, BALKED BY DEMOCRATS, TO WIN OFFICE

Militant Minority Shows Its Strength, Halting Appointment

RECONSIDERATION SURE

Clevelanders Want Member Of Liquor Board From Their District

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13—The militant Democratic Senate minority, having forcefully demonstrated its power to checkmate the Republican majority, was expected today to consent to the appointment of Harry E. Hawley, of Mansfield, as a member of the state liquor board.

Hawley was denied confirmation yesterday because the Democrats voted against him and the Republicans, having only 19 elected members, could muster no more than 18 votes with one of their number, Sen. Joseph Jameson, Loran, refusing to answer the roll call. Jameson did not explain his action.

Hence, the Hawley nomination was rejected by the senate, 17 to 15, Sen. Grant Ward (R-Columbus) changing from "yes" to "no" so he could move to reconsider the unfavorable vote, when it became apparent that the nineteenth vote could not be obtained at once.

Confirmation Expected
Ward's motion to reconsider was left pending until next Wednesday when it was indicated Hawley would be confirmed along with Lovell C. Bodey, Urbana Democrat, re-appointed by Governor Bricker to the liquor board.

The senate unanimously confirmed Earl W. Baird, Columbus Democrat and the third Bricker appointee to the liquor board who succeeds the late William North, Greenville. Baird is a newspaperman and former manager of the Columbus Press Club.

Minority Leader William Boyd (D-Cleveland) explained that members of his party did not object to Hawley personally but resented what he termed an attempt by the Republicans to rush the appointments through the senate without time for investigation of the appointee.

In an exchange with Majority Leader Frank Whittemore (R-Akron), Boyd also dwelt upon his party's resentment at the few committee assignments allowed it by the controlling party.

Other factors known to have motivated the Democratic revolt were:

1. Belief that Cuyahoga County (Cleveland) should have a representative on the liquor board. All seven Cuyahoga senators are Democrats.

2. Determination to show the Republican leaders that the minority is strong enough to compel greater consideration than in the past.

3. Desire to impress on executive appointees to various boards the fact that they owe some appreciation to the senate.

Boyd, in a formal statement, cited that although Cuyahoga County has about one-sixth the total state population and one-third of all liquor permits issued originate there, the governor failed to give the county a member of the liquor board.

Nor is there a board member from any other county in the populous northeastern section, he pointed out. Bodey and Baird are from central Ohio and the fourth member, William Hesse, is from Cincinnati.

To Consult Leaders

Boyd insisted that "the larger political units be given consideration" in the making of appointments. "Otherwise," he said, "we shall henceforth consult Democratic leaders with reference to the confirmation of Democratic appointees."

Another prominent Democratic senator complained that in some instances board members, confirmed by the senate, had not cooperated later with members calling at their offices on business.

He cited that legislators are deluged by their constituents with requests for aid in matters handled by the many boards and that not always have board members been as courteous as he felt they should be.

For that reason, this senator said, he considered it unwise to hasten senate confirmations without giving the members time to in-

The program for the two-day event has been completed with four speakers scheduled for Friday afternoon, a banquet, entertainment and awarding of prizes.

The banquet committee reports that reservations already have been made for 125 persons and that others were having to be turned down.

Karl Mason, in charge of window displays, said Thursday that six of Circleville industrial concerns and business houses would have window displays in downtown store windows.

The displays will remain in the store windows over the week-end.

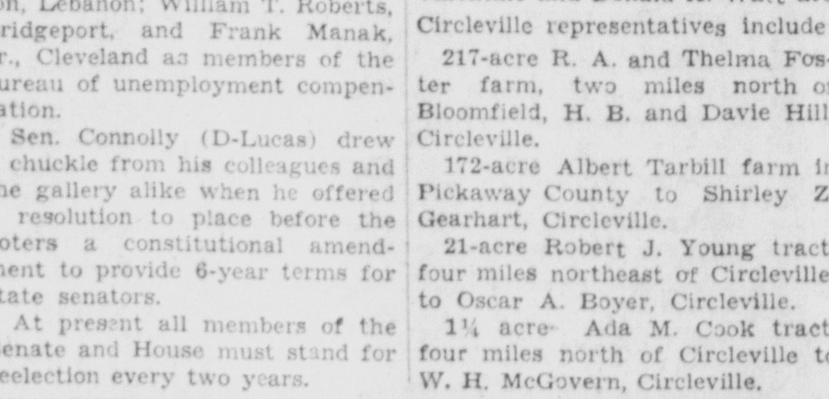

Committee in charge of commercial exhibits reports that 14 will be set up in Memorial Hall Friday morning, not including the individual displays entered for competition.

Without objection the senate confirmed Emory Beetham, Cuyahoga County, as a member of the state conservation commission for a term ending February 1949.

It received and referred to the rules committee the governor's appointments of Arthur Hamilton, Lebanon; William T. Roberts, Bridgeport, and Frank Manak, Jr., Cleveland as members of the bureau of unemployment compensation.

AAA Officials To Attend State Meeting Set For Next Tuesday

QUOTAS ARE POSSIBLE

Rejection Would Mean That No Limit Would Be Put On Production

Three men representing Pickaway County farmers will attend a state-wide meeting of county AAA committeemen Tuesday in Columbus to discuss the possibilities of market restrictions on the 1941 corn and wheat crops.

Those to attend the conference include John G. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway County AAA Committee; Wilbur E. Brinker, vice-chairman, and Dewey Downs, third member of the committee of farmers.

The probabilities of corn and wheat marketing quotas for the coming year were announced by Elmer F. Kruse, state AAA chairman, and Auglaize County farmer, during the final day's session of Farmers' Week.

Marketing quotas are the maximum amounts of corn or wheat which producers may market without penalty in years when supplies are above normal.

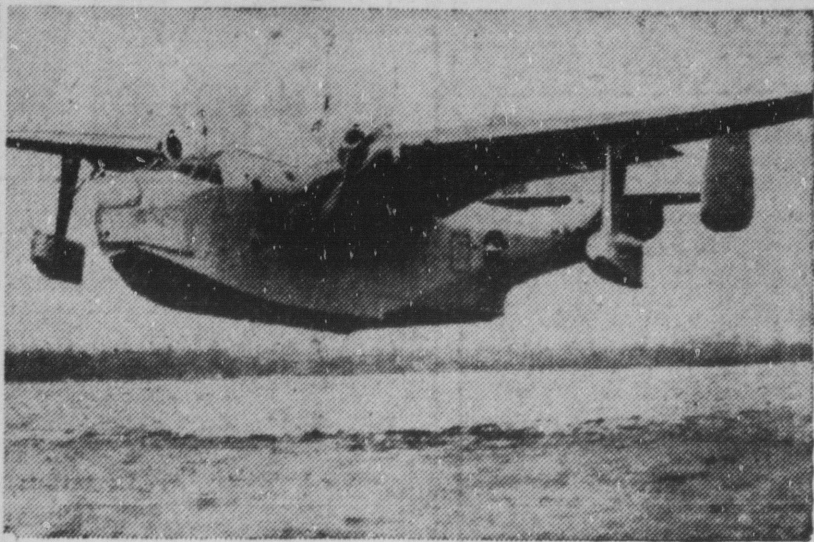

Inasmuch as the total supplies of both corn and wheat are fast approaching the marketing quota level established under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, quotas may be proclaimed by the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture. Following this proclamation, farmers must vote two to one in favor of such restrictions before they become operative, Chairman Boggs said.

Level Discussed

The marketing quota level for corn is 10 percent above normal domestic consumption requirements, exports and reserves. The wheat marketing quota level has been set at 35 percent above normal.

If quotas are operative, farmers who plant within their individual allotments may market all the corn or wheat produced, either

Writer Flies Ocean to England in Bomber

FOR the first time since American aid began flowing to Britain, an American journalist, J. Reagan McCrary (left), chief editorial writer for the New York Mirror, crossed the Atlantic in one of the bombers being flown to Britain. He rode in the rear gunner's blister of a huge PBV long-range patrol bomber such as the one pictured. The planes can carry 4,000 pounds of bombs and can fly 4,000 miles non-stop.

Others Are Careless, Too, About Books, But Fines Assist Library

If you are one of those forgetful persons, and remember suddenly in the middle of the night that you forgot to take a book back to the library, you needn't feel too badly about it. You have plenty of company.

Every day the Circleville Public Library mails from a half dozen to a dozen notices, an average of nine a day, to patrons who forget by selling or feeding it to livestock, Mr. Boggs pointed out.

Farmers who exceed their allotments may market the crops produced with the allotment without penalty. Excess production above the allotment may be stored on the farm at 60 percent of the loan rate offered to AAA cooperators. Any marketing or feeding of corn or wheat above the allotment is subject to a penalty.

Limits Not Certain

There will be no limits on the amount of corn or wheat any farmer could market if quotas are rejected, the chairman declared, and no loans will be offered either to cooperators or non-cooperators. Crops under loan and government-owned corn and wheat will be released from storage.

Those attending the meeting will discuss means of informing all Pickaway County farmers of the provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 regarding marketing quotas.

or are just too careless to return their borrowed books on time.

The forgetful borrowers help to finance the library, however, with the pennies and nickels they pay in fines. The fine is two cents a day for each overdue book.

While the library lost seven books last year to persons who borrowed them and disappeared, Daniel Pfoutz, librarian, said he and his assistants are able to keep a close watch on most of the volumes.

After a book is two weeks overdue, the borrower receives a card reminding him of the oversight. In three weeks he gets another, and the third notice, a week later, is a letter explaining that his library privileges are in danger.

If the letter brings no response, a library worker makes a trip to the patron's home and if he can be found the book is brought back or enough money to cover the loss. Library privileges are suspended for adults when their fines reach 75 cents and at 25 cents for children.

"We have less trouble with children than adults, possibly because children are more likely to respect authority," Mr. Pfoutz said. More volumes of fiction, and especially western stories, are lost than any other type of books. There are also sizable losses every year on the applied arts, including mechanics and electricity, Mr. Pfoutz added.

Since books of that type usually are read by men, statistics would indicate men are more careless than women about getting books back to the library. Perhaps and even more reasonable explanation is that the books on applied arts are so valuable in their work that the men are reluctant to return them.

MRS. GADD DRIVES

HEROINE of the year so far in Detroit is Mrs. Richard Gadd of Grosse Pointe. Anybody can get a kick out of what she did.

Mrs. Gadd, aged 50, was riding in a city bus headed down town, when the driver was seized with a heart attack and slumped in his seat. She and a small boy were the only people in the bus. She had never driven a car and her notions of how to do it were very dim. But that driverless bus was roaring on through traffic, and something had to be done quick.

She ran up front, grabbed the steering wheel, pushed the unconscious driver aside and took his place. She didn't know what to do with her feet, and merely tried to steer. She shoved somehow through the traffic, pulling the wheel this way and that to avoid collisions, got through a busy intersection, crashed a red light, and finally swung the bus into a side street and brought it to a halt just as it was about to crash into a tree. She had somehow choked the motor.

"Pretty good for an old lady!" she observed. You bet it was!

PROCESSED COAL

WHEN St. Louis, which has recently been bragging justifiably about its new freedom from coal smoke, first enacted the ordinances that led to this condition, it threw the southern Illinois coal industry into despair. Much of the coal from that region had gone directly into the St. Louis market. It looked as if southern Illinois would have to pay for the cleanliness of St. Louis with an economic depression of its own.

Soon, however, coal from that region will be going into St. Louis again, in different form. Smokeless briquettes, made from pulverized coal with the use of a binder of corn starch and asphalt, have been found to meet the requirements of the fuel ordinance. A plant about to begin production on a big scale will turn out 20 tons of briquettes an hour, and more later. It has been under experimental operation for several weeks.

Such briquettes have been manufactured in coal fields in the East for some time, but it took a crisis in the Illinois industry to start their manufacture there. Resistance to such improvements is nearly always poor business. Instead of losing a market permanently, a wider market will now be developed.

Now Mussolini in a last desperate effort has sent his Fascist party chiefs to the front, but it seems doubtful that even politicians can win that war.

BOTTLENECK NOW IS SHIPS

WASHINGTON—When Margaret Russell was being escorted to the railroad station after rising in the gallery of the House of Representatives wearing a death mask, she suddenly confided to Capitol police that she had forgotten her coat.

The coat, it developed, had been left in the office of Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, vigorous opponent of the lend-lease bill. Miss Russell had gone to Wheeler's office, hung up her coat and then put on the black robe in which she gave her death chant against the lend-lease bill.

So police took her back to Wheeler's office, where she got her coat and then caught the train.

MISSING BOTTOMS

A few days ago the United States Lines announced that their panamanian subsidiary was selling five small, slow, 20-year-old freighters to England for the purpose of carrying war supplies. To insiders, this graphically illustrated the desperate predicament of British shipping.

The problem is particularly acute in the transport of planes—which these five ships were especially chartered to carry. Officials are not shouting it from the housetops, but the grimmest difficulty facing Britain today is not getting warplanes made in the U. S., but getting them into the hands of the heroic RAF in the face of heavy Nazi raids on British shipping.

Britain now has on order approximately 16,000 planes, with another 12,000 contemplated, chiefly medium and heavy bombers. Of the 16,000 ordered, only around 2,000 actually have left U. S. borders—and not all of them have reached England. Many (the exact number is an official secret) are still in Canada awaiting shipment.

Which adds up to this: If Britain is to get the 14,000 planes remaining on order by July, 1942, as the schedule calls for, the minimum export during the next 17 months will have to be around 825 a month—a threefold increase over the present rate of deliveries. Commerce Department figures show that in November 241 planes were exported to Britain, while the output was approximately 750.

The problem this poses is colossal. Ferrying planes by flying them across the Atlantic is more dramatic than productive, since only long-range bombers can be transported that way, and only when the weather permits and trained crews are available. Pursuits, fighters, interceptors and other short-range planes have to be shipped.

That is why those five rusty old freighters were taken out of the boneyard and pressed back into service, and why England is frantically scouring the shipping lanes of the world for every available hull that can carry a crate. Britain has got to have ships if the planes she needs so desperately are to reach her in time.

DIET AND HEALTH

How Physicians Detect Vitamin Deficiency

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
We went along for years without realizing that the substance we call vitamins in the food are necessary for normal growth and vigorous health. The conditions which result from lack of vitamins are rather elusive.

Nowadays, however, the modern doctor is alert to the possibility of vitamin deficiency and he pays particular attention to the following signs which may indicate vitamin deficiency:

Condition of Tongue

In the first place, he makes an examination of the eyes to see whether or not there is any night blindness. This is perhaps the best general test of vitamin deficiency, and if night blindness is present it indicates that probably a number of vitamins are deficient in the diet.

The condition of the tongue is very important. A rough, fissured or raw tongue is good evidence of vitamin deficiency. Ulcerations or cracks around the lips are also noted. The condition of the bones, especially if there is any swelling of the long bones toward the end; whether there is any pain present over the bones, are especially valuable signs in infants.

The condition of the skin itself is an indication of vitamin deficiency. If the skin is rough and shows little plugs at the mouth of the sweat glands which make it look as if there were gooseflesh, this is considered to be an indication of vitamin deficiency. A general feeling of lassitude is noted, and, in general, a feeling of well-being would indicate that the vitamin supply in the food is sufficient.

Dietary Habits

In trying to arrive at a diagnosis, it is well to inquire into the dietary habits of the individual—What kind of a cook is there in the household? Does the cook cook for one or several? A person living alone and cooking his or her own meals is much more likely to use processed foods which do not contain vitamins in large numbers. A housewife cooking for several people, on the whole, is likely to have a more balanced diet containing a good quantity of vitamins.

The whole subject of vitamins is one which undoubtedly will be increasing in importance within the next few years. More and more conditions are being found in which concentrated vitamin diets will be efficacious.

I have, for instance, before me a report on arthritis and rheumatism in which it has been found accidentally that pushing the vitamins will lead to improvement. In these cases the vitamins act somewhat like drugs—it is not a question of the vitamins in itself, but of deficiency in the diet, but the vitamin in concentrated form acts in a helpful way as if it were a chemical. One thing that has made treatment so popular is that at any rate, it never does any harm and there is very little toxicity associated with the vitamins.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. O.:—"Should a person suffering from varicose veins do a lot of walking or rest as much as possible? Will rubbing the legs with alcohol help in any way? If there is a cure, what would be best?"

Answer:—We have several times in this column described the injection treatment of varicose veins which is very satisfactory. Walking is harmful for varicose veins before treatment but there is no reason why people should limit their activity on account of varicose veins when there is a satisfactory treatment, and certainly no one should use so perfectly useless a palliative as alcohol rubs in the hope they are doing some good. After the injection treatment is completed, the varicose vein patient can walk as much as he likes.

M. M.:—"Is ulcer of the stomach curable in a man of 30? He has had it for 10 to 12 years. Is an operation necessary and successful? He has been in bed for three weeks and has had five hemorrhages."

Answer:—Ulcer of the stomach takes so many different forms that blanket advice is not very good. In this particular case I should say that surgical consultation would be indicated. If an ulcer case does not get well on diet and alkaline powders, and when there are weakening hemorrhages, it is advisable to consider surgery—at any rate, to get a surgeon's advice.

SYNOPSIS

BILL LATHAM, young novelist, is about to marry RITA LINWOOD, a local "butterfly". JOEL RANDALL, Bill's older cousin, and AUNT SALLIE RANDALL help him make his final preparations for the event.

YESTERDAY: The minister tells the guests there will be no wedding after Rita suddenly announces she isn't going through with the marriage.

CHAPTER SIX

JUST AS Joel was backing his car into the street, the church doors were thrown open, and a veritable deluge of human beings poured forth. They rushed out into the cement walks, overflowed to the neat and close-clipped lawn, pushing, shoving, talking. Guests, bridesmaids, ushers, bridesmaids' mothers, a weeping little flower girl, a wide-eyed small page boy, and Rita's grandmother, waving her cane, and making remarks that all but blistered the paint on the church edifice.

And then a girl, plain, almost mannish, and carrying a notebook, spied Joel and his Aunt Sallie. She gave a cry, and bore down on them like a female savage.

"Oh, Lord!" Joel groaned. "Here comes Sadie Young, our ubiquitous society reporter!" He grabbed his aunt's arm. "Don't talk, Aunt Sallie, whatever you do!"

Aunt Sallie sat up, stiff and stern. "I'm an oyster, so far as Sadie's concerned," she said.

But Sadie, smelling a juicy story for her column, charged on and on. "Where's Mr. Latham?" she cried out breathlessly. "I want his side of the story right away!" She clung to the side of the car and peered in at Joel and Aunt Sallie. "What's happened to him?"

"I couldn't say," Joel replied. "He—er—may still be back in the minister's study."

"Was he terribly heartbroken?" Sadie asked.

"Perhaps you'd better ask him that," said Joel.

Aunt Sallie gave Sadie a look that was calculated to make her sink through the sidewalk.

"This is all very silly," she said. "Please drive me home, Joel."

"Sure, Aunt Sallie," Joel said. He started the engine again, but Sadie still clung. "You'd better hurry, Sadie," he advised. "My cousin may be on the verge of a collapse, but no doubt he'll have something to say."

"Thanks!" said Sadie. "Thanks a lot!" She smiled at Aunt Sallie. "Haven't you any statement to make, Mrs. Randall? After all, Mr. Latham is rather like your son."

"No, my aunt has nothing to say," Joel said quickly.

But Aunt Sallie did have something to say. She forgot that she was supposed to be playing the role of a cyster.

"I've got this to say," she told Sadie. "I'm glad that my nephew, William Randall Latham, is not going to give his fine old name to a—a mental pitberber."

Sadie gasped. Joel felt a sinking sensation in the pit of his stomach. There would be trouble, if Sadie published his aunt's words. Old Mrs. Linwood would come a-running, came and all. There might even be one of those family feud things he had heard so much about.

"We must go now, Sadie," he said, trying to speak calmly. "I know you'll use discretion in quoting my aunt."

"Discretion, my eye!" said Aunt Sallie. Sadie let go her hold on the car and stepped away from it. Joel quickly sped off, before she could cling again or ask any more questions. When the car reached a less crowded area, Joel slowed down. He glanced at his aunt.

"You're a fine one," he said. "Don't you know that Sadie person likes to quote people verbatim? Honestly, Aunt Sallie, you ought to be spanked."

"You can't talk to Aunt Sallie like that!" said a voice behind him. Joel jammed on the brakes. He and Aunt Sallie turned. Bill was looking up at them from beneath the automobile roof. His hair was all disheveled, his tie was hanging loose, and there was an abrasion on the end of his nose.

"Well, for mercy's sake!" Aunt Sallie cried. "Where did you come from?"

"I've been hiding under this robe," said Bill. "Thanks a lot, Aunt Sallie, for telling that reporter what you did."

"Where's Rita?" Joel asked.

"Gone!" said Bill.

"With Don?"

"Yes, with Don."

Aunt Sallie reached back; she touched Bill's hair, the injured nose, the outraged tie.

"You poor darling," she said tenderly. "You must have bumped your nose on the car floor."

"No, Aunt Sallie," said Bill. "I didn't bump my nose. That's where Don hit me."

"What?" said Aunt Sallie and Joel in unison.

"But you ought to see HIM," Bill went on. He laughed mirthlessly. "He'll look swell getting married with a black eye."

"You mean you had a fight?" said Aunt Sallie.

"Yes'm. 'Round behind the church. I dragged Don there. Rita tried to separate us, and—and—well, I'm afraid her eye may be black, too."

"William Randall Latham, this is awful!" Aunt Sallie cried. "YOU, hitting a woman—even Rita?"

"I didn't hit her," said Bill. "Don did."

"Well, for goodness sake! I never in all my—"

"He meant to hit me," Bill explained, "but Rita got in the way." He glanced behind them. "Step on it," Joel. A car's speeding after us."

He looked again. "Gosh, it's that Sadie Young!"

Joel sped on. They turned into Oak Avenue.

"Shall I take you home first, Aunt Sallie?" he called.

"Certainly not," said Aunt Sallie. "I'm going to stick to you boys. Drive on to your apartment."

Bill threw aside the robe and sank down upon the rear seat. He brushed himself, tried to fix his tie and then, seeing his high hat on

Found that among the perfect scores of the last few days were ones by Jim Shea, of the Legion team, Austin Showman, of The Herald squad, and Russ Miller, of the Wolves.

Turned, then, toward home after a rather active sixteen hours, and, since the dinner had been a snatch and run affair, was delighted to find a fine cut of beef in the ice box. Came a great sandwich and a beaker of milk, both of which were shared with an anxious dog, and then after piling on coal against the cold of morning did turn toward bed.

MRS. GADD DRIVES

HEROINE of the year so far in Detroit is Mrs. Richard Gadd of Grosse Pointe. Anybody can get a kick out of what she did.

Mrs. Gadd, aged 50, was riding in a city bus headed down town, when the driver was seized with a heart attack and slumped in his seat. She and a small boy were the only people in the bus. She had never driven a car and her notions of how to do it were very dim. But that driverless bus was roaring on through traffic, and something had to be done quick.

She ran up front, grabbed the steering wheel, pushed the unconscious driver aside and took his place. She didn't know what to do with her feet, and merely tried to steer. She shoved somehow through the traffic, pulling the wheel this way and that to avoid collisions, got through a busy intersection, crashed a red light, and finally swung the bus into a side street and brought it to a halt just as it was about to crash into a tree. She had somehow choked the motor.

"Pretty good for an old lady!" she observed. You bet it was!

PROCESSED COAL

WHEN St. Louis, which has recently been bragging justifiably about its new freedom from coal smoke, first enacted the ordinances that led to this condition, it threw the southern Illinois coal industry into despair. Much of the coal from that region had gone directly into the St. Louis market. It looked as if southern Illinois would have to pay for the cleanliness of St. Louis with an economic depression of its own.

Soon, however, coal from that region will be going into St. Louis again, in different form. Smokeless briquettes, made from pulverized coal with the use of a binder of corn starch and asphalt, have been found to meet the requirements of the fuel ordinance. A plant about to begin production on a big scale will turn out 20 tons of briquettes an hour, and more later. It has been under experimental operation for several weeks.

Such briquettes have been manufactured in coal fields in the East for some time, but it took a crisis in the Illinois industry to start their manufacture there. Resistance to such improvements is nearly always poor business. Instead of losing a market permanently, a wider market will now be developed.

Now Mussolini in a last desperate effort has sent his Fascist party chiefs to the front, but it seems doubtful that even politicians can win that war.

JUST AS Joel was backing his car into the street, the church doors were thrown open, and a veritable deluge of human beings poured forth. They rushed out into the cement walks, overflowed to the neat and close-clipped lawn, pushing, shoving, talking. Guests, bridesmaids, ushers, bridesmaids' mothers, a weeping little flower girl, a wide-eyed small page boy, and Rita's grandmother, waving her cane, and making remarks that all but blistered the paint on the church edifice.

And then a girl, plain, almost mannish, and carrying a notebook, spied Joel and his Aunt Sallie. She gave a cry, and bore down on them like a female savage.

"Oh, Lord!" Joel groaned. "Here comes Sadie Young, our ubiquitous society reporter!" He grabbed his aunt's arm. "Don't talk, Aunt Sallie, whatever you do!"

Aunt Sallie sat up, stiff and stern. "I'm an oyster, so far as Sadie's concerned," she said.

But Sadie, smelling a juicy story for her column, charged on and on. "Where's Mr. Latham?" she cried out breathlessly. "I want his side of the story right away!" She clung to the side of the car and peered in at Joel and Aunt Sallie.

"What's happened to him?" "I couldn't say," Joel replied. "He—er—may still be back in the minister's study."

"Was he terribly heartbroken?" Sadie asked. "Perhaps you'd better ask him that," said Joel.

Aunt Sallie gave Sadie a look that was calculated to make her sink through the sidewalk.

"This is all very silly," she said. "Please drive me home, Joel."

"Sure, Aunt-Sallie," Joel said. He started the engine again, but Sadie still clung. "You'd better hurry, Sadie," he advised. "My cousin may be on the verge of a collapse, but no doubt he'll have something to say."

"Thank!" said Sadie. "Thanks a lot!" She smiled at Aunt Sallie. "Haven't you any statement to make, Mrs. Randall? After all, Mr. Latham is rather like your son."

"No, my aunt has nothing to say," Joel said quickly.

But Aunt Sallie did have something to say. She forgot that she was supposed to be playing the role of sister.

"I've got this to say," she told Sadie. "I'm glad that my nephew, William Randall Latham, is not going to give his fine old name to a—a—a mental jitterbug."

Sadie gasped. Joel felt a sinking sensation in the pit of his stomach. There would be trouble, if Sadie published his aunt's words. Old Mrs. Linwood would come a-running, cane and all. There might even be one of those family feud things he had heard so much about.

"We must go now, Sadie," he said, trying to speak calmly. "I know you'll use discretion in quoting my aunt."

"Discretion, my eye!" said Aunt Sallie.

Sadie let go her hold on the car and stepped away from it. Joel quickly sped off, before she could cling again or ask any more questions. When the car reached a less crowded area, Joel slowed down. He glanced at his aunt.

"You're a fine one," he said. "Don't you know that Sadie person likes to quote people verbatim? Honestly, Aunt Sallie, you ought to be spanked."

"You can't talk to Aunt Sallie like that!" said a voice behind him. Joel jammed on the brakes. He and Aunt Sallie turned. Bill was looking up at them from beneath the automobile robe. His hair was all disheveled, his tie was hanging loose, and there was an abrasion on the end of his nose.

"Well, for mercy's sake!" Aunt Sallie cried. "Where did you come from?"

"I've been hiding under this robe," said Bill. "Thanks a lot, Aunt Sallie, for telling that reporter what you did."

"Where's Rita?" Joel asked. "Gone!" said Bill.

"With Don?" "Yes, with Don."

Aunt Sallie reached back; she touched Bill's hair, the injured nose, the outraged tie.

"You poor darling," she said tenderly. "You must have bumped your nose on the car floor?"

"No, Aunt Sallie," said Bill. "I didn't bump my nose. That's where Don hit me."

"What!" said Aunt Sallie and Joel in unison.

"But you ought to see HIM," Bill went on. He laughed mirthlessly. "He'll look swell getting married with a black eye."

"You mean you had a fight?" said Aunt Sallie.

"Yes'm. Round behind the church. I dragged 'em there. Rita tried to separate us, and—and—well, I'm afraid her eye may be black, too."

"William Randall Latham, this is awful!" Aunt Sallie cried. "YOU, hitting a woman—even Rita!"

"I didn't hit her," said Bill. "Don did."

"Well, for goodness sake! I never in all my—"

"He meant to hit me," Bill explained. "But Rita got in the way. He glanced behind me. 'Step on it,' Joel. A car's speeding after us." He looked again. "Goah, it's that Sadie Young!"

Joel sped on. They turned into Oak avenue.

"Shall I take you home first, Aunt Sallie?" he called.

"Certainly not," said Aunt Sallie. "I'm going to stick to you boys. Drive on to your apartment."

Bill threw aside the robe and sank down upon the rear seat. He brushed himself, tried to fix his tie and then, seeing his high hat on the floor, he picked it up and eyed it ruefully.

"Darned swell of you, Joel," he said, "sending Sadie into the study like that. Thanks a lot, old man."

"Don't mention it," said Joel dryly. "Protecting you has got to be a habit."

They reached Main street, and sped on. Then into Oakland terrace. There Joel brought the car to a standstill. He leaped out. So did Aunt Sallie. So did Bill. They ran across the sidewalk and into the apartment house.

"Thank heavens, we lost her," said Bill.

"But not for long," said Joel. "What's to prevent her coming here?"

"Nothing," said Bill. "But she can't break down the door, or can she?"

"Probably," said Joel. They got into the small self-service elevator, and Bill touched the button marked "Three." A few moments later they were entering the bachelor apartment they had quitted less than an hour before.

Bill threw his high hat upon the lounge.

"Well," he said, "it would seem I'm still a bachelor."

"Yes," said Aunt Sallie, "and the next time you decide not to go on being one, do, for goodness sake, choose a woman with some sense."

Joel reminded Aunt Sallie of a woman, while I get out of this junk I'm wearing." He walked into the bedroom, calling back: "You two will have to hold the fort against the charging reporter."

Almost at once the buzzer rang. Bill stiffened. Aunt Sallie caught her breath.

"Well?" said Joel. "Do something!" He closed the bedroom door behind him, leaving Bill and Aunt Sallie alone.

The buzzer kept on ringing. Evidently Sadie was leaning against it.

"She knows we're home," said Aunt Sallie. "The car's right in front of the door."

"All right," said Bill. "I'll speak to her." He went to the speaking tube. "Hello!" he called.

"Hello!" said Sadie, her voice sounding tiny and far-off. "I want to speak to Mr. Latham. . . . And don't tell me he isn't there! He is. He was hidden under that robe I saw him through the rear window, I—"

"If you'll shut up for half a second," Bill cut in. "I'll agree with you that Mr. Latham is here. Mr. Latham is speaking."

"Oh!" said Sadie. Then she rushed on. "Mr. Latham, I want a statement from you. I'll see that you get fair treatment, that the town people won't laugh too much over the jitting, and—"

"I've got nothing to say," snapped Bill. "And you'd better be darned careful what you write. Maybe you've heard of libel. Or is there a guardian angel that protects such pests as you society reporters?"

"Bill," said Aunt Sallie. "You'll get her mad, and then she'll write something dreadful."

"Let her," said Bill. "And see what happens."

Turkey Keeps Watch

Turkey was reported taking a lively interest in Balkan affairs, particularly in view of her promises to fight if Bulgaria is invaded.

The London Daily Mail, in an Istanbul dispatch, quoted a Turkish spokesman as stating: "Turkey might not wait to be invaded. She might move before the enemy reached her gates. Secret Bulgarian cooperation with the Nazis cannot frighten Turkey."

"Turkish leaders have long foreseen all possible eventualities and have taken all possible precautions. Turkey has a million trained men, ready and waiting behind the steel Turkish frontier of Thrace. These forces, which do not constitute all of Turkey's armed might, are ready to crush Nazi invaders or their accomplices who attempt to interfere with Turkish freedom or security."

ther with Mussolini yesterday or today. First official announcement of the Franco-Mussolini talks came from Madrid last night. A Spanish government communiqué said Franco and Il Duce had reached a "complete identity of views . . . on all problems of a European character interesting the two governments at the present historic moment."

(Editor's Note: This morning the Italian government at Rome issued a belated announcement of the Franco-Mussolini talks, which occurred yesterday at Bordighera.)

After luncheon, it was anticipated, the Spanish and French government leaders will hold a lengthy conference.

It was anticipated that Franco's brother-in-law, Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suñer, French Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan and Marcel Peyrouton, French interior minister, will participate. Francois Pietri, a former French cabinet official, and now ambassador to Spain, also may take part.

What Franco and Mussolini discussed in their talks remained an undisclosed secret. But in France two widely conflicting views prevailed regarding Franco's negotiations with Mussolini and Petain.

Gibraltar Mentioned

One was that axis moves are being hatched against Gibraltar, Britain's Mediterranean fortress at the southern tip of Spain. The second and seemingly far less plausible view was that African peace moves are under way.

Petain left Vichy earlier in the week for his villa at Villeneuve-Loubet on the Riviera to await his conference with Franco. Later Petain was joined by Darlan, the marshal's new political heir and successor.

As for Franco's meeting with Il Duce, French official circles were quick to read into the Madrid communiqué the implication that the talks dealt with more active collaboration between the axis and Madrid.

Considerable speculation arose over the possibility that movement of German troops across Spain for an attack on Gibraltar was discussed, and that free passage of German forces across unoccupied France now may be put up to Petain.

(Editor's Note: The usually well informed Rome correspondent of the official Spanish news agency commented in the Franco-Mussolini talks as follows:

"Regarding what concerns the actual war, Franco no doubt heard from the most authoritative lips a definition of what the conflict is—and what it will have to be . . . the conversations were marked by logic and sincerity.")

The present crisis, Willkie declared, offers the Republican party its greatest opportunity for political leadership. Any belief, Willkie asserted, that this country could turn its face as democracy was extinguished in Europe and still preserve democracy here would "render false all the pages of history."

Willkie touched lightly on his recent visit to England. He described Winston Churchill as in his opinion "the greatest public figure in the world."

The Republican party, he pointed out, was founded "to preserve freedom."

"That was the reason for our coming into being and if we will but remember that we cannot fail," he declared. "But, if we become like the Whig Party, merely the party of negation, merely those who find fault and who in one of the critical moments of history find nothing nobler to do than compromise, this great party will pass from the scene."

Pleading with his followers to "preach a positive doctrine" and to recognize that the fate of this country is inextricably wound up with that of Great Britain, Willkie flung out to his party this fervent challenge:

"Have we the vision, have we the ability, have we the leadership to take America down this glorious path that is offered to us? I have no doubt that we have."

SENATE FOREIGN COMMITTEE FOR LEND ACT, 15-8

Approval Voted In Morning Session After Rejecting Major Amendments

The President is understood to have pointed out he could make no definite plans or agreements with Britain until the bill had been approved, hence the desire of the senate administration leaders to push the house-approved measure to passage.

Seeking to meet criticism of "blank check" powers for the President in the "all out" British aid bill, Democratic leaders had agreed to three important modifications.

They proposed a "flexible ceiling" which prohibits the President from entering contracts involving huge sums without specific authorization, restrictions on the proposed revolving fund created from repayments, and a revamped amendment permitting congress to withdraw vast power given the President any time it declares the power is not needed for National Defense.

Objections Met "We believe that we have met many objections without injuring the bill," said Barkley. "We expect to take it up for debate on Monday and I hope it will pass by March 1. It will pass by more than a 2 to 1 vote."

The administration poll, one important senate leader said, indicated passage by a vote of at least 69 to 27.

The measure, as it goes to the senate floor, grants these wide powers:

1. Authorizes the President to manufacture defense weapons for foreign nations either in government arsenals or privately owned factories.
2. Transfer existing ships, planes, munitions and other articles on any terms he chooses, after consulting the chief of staff of the army and chief of naval operations, with a limitation of $1,300,000,000 on transfers.
3. Repair and outfit British or other foreign warships in American navy yards or ports. 4. Communicate defense information to other nations.

Date for the festival was set for Thursday, April 3, and the place, the Ashville school building. The program will open at 8:15 p. m.

Orchestral numbers selected for the evening's program include "Russian Overture," "Andante," "Gypsy Trail Overture," "Clock Shop," "Liebeslied," and "Festival March."

"Song of Triumph" by Edward W. Norman will be the title of the cantata. Tryouts for vocal soloists parts will be made next Wednesday night at the Ashville school, the soloists being judged by Ellis Snyder, music instructor at Capital University. The tryout will be held at 7:30.

promise and negation and failure and death," Willkie declared.

The present crisis, Willkie declared, offers the Republican party its greatest opportunity for political leadership. Any belief, Willkie asserted, that this country could turn its face as democracy was extinguished in Europe and still preserve democracy here would "render false all the pages of history."

Willkie touched lightly on his recent visit to England. He described Winston Churchill as in his opinion "the greatest public figure in the world."

The Republican party, he pointed out, was founded "to preserve freedom."

"That was the reason for our coming into being and if we will not remember that we cannot fail," he declared. "But, if we become like the Whig Party, merely the party of negation, merely those who find fault and who in one of the critical moments of history find nothing nobler to do than compromise, this great party will pass from the scene."

Pleading with his followers to "preach a positive doctrine" and to recognize that the fate of this country is inextricably wound up with that of Great Britain, Willkie flung out to his party this fervent challenge:

"Have we the vision, have we the ability, have we the leadership to take America down this glorious path that is offered to us? I have no doubt that we have."

SENATE FOREIGN COMMITTEE FOR LEND ACT, 15-8

Approval Voted In Morning Session After Rejecting Major Amendments

sist on Britain clearing the way for the United States to obtain rubber, tin and other supplies controlled by British interests.

The President is understood to have pointed out he could make no definite plans or agreements with Britain until the bill had been approved, hence the desire of the senate administration leaders to push the house-approved measure to passage.

Seeking to meet criticism of "blank check" powers for the President in the "all out" British aid bill, Democratic leaders had agreed to three important modifications.

They proposed a "flexible ceiling" which prohibits the President from entering contracts involving huge sums without specific authorization, restrictions on the proposed revolving fund created from repayments, and a revamped amendment permitting congress to withdraw vast power given the President any time it declares the power is not needed for National Defense.

Objections Met

"We believe that we have met many objections without injuring the bill," said Barkley. "We expect to take it up for debate on Monday and I hope it will pass by March 1. It will pass by more than a 2 to 1 vote."

The administration poll, one important senate leader said, indicated passage by a vote of at least 69 to 27.

The measure, as it goes to the senate floor, grants these wide powers:

1. Authorizes the President to manufacture defense weapons for foreign nations either in government arsenals or privately owned factories.
2. Transfer existing ships, planes, munitions and other articles on any terms he chooses, after consulting the chief of staff of the army and chief of naval operations, with a limitation of $1,500,000,000 on transfers.
3. Repair and outfit British or other foreign warships in American navy yards or ports.

4. Communicate defense information to other nations.

Baseball's High Mogul Is Warned

Major League Owners To Contest Ruling That Affects Minor League Athletes

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 — An ultimatum will shortly be handed to Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball. It may be couched in the form of a request, but it is none the less an ultimatum.

Major League club owners who feel that the commissioner has invaded their property rights with his recent edict affecting many players brought up for trial next spring are ready to fight. In fact, the fight is already on today and it's a dandy underdog affray.

The issue is whether Landis is empowered to write into the national agreement interpretations of rules that make him a baseball legislator instead of an executive.

Last winter the commissioner became involved in the famous "seven points" imbroglio and was eventually induced to tone down his demands. Some baseball men insist that the judge did a complete "about face" when the pressure was applied. The official statement indicated a compromise.

The National League appointed a committee to deal with Landis on the new issue, which revolves around the commissioner's right to expose certain players to waivers and the possibility of valuable prospects, though not ready for the big time, being claimed by cheap second division clubs.

Malcolm (Smoky) Williams, Commercial Point's contribution to basketball at Otterbein College, turned in a brilliant performance Wednesday evening when he scored 17 points from a guard position to help the Cardinals turn back Capital University, 38-21. Williams pegged six shots from the field and added five free ones for his splendid total.

Circleville Athletic Club, going great guns in its season's basketball play, takes on the Kahn Jewellers of Columbus Sunday evening in a preliminary to the Waterloo Wonder-San Francisco Wah Kue game booked in K. of C. gym, Columbus. The Wah Kues comes to Circleville Saturday night for one of the big games of the year, the west coast Chinese putting on a great exhibition of the court game wherever they appear.

If you like your basketball hot and terrific, the Circleville High gym will be the place for you next Monday evening when Washington Township acts as host to the Monroe Township quintet. The game is a crucial one for Monroe since it needs a victory to remain on top the heap, providing it turns back New Holland Friday night. Washington bumped off Ashville Tuesday evening in the High gym and promises to be tough for anyone in Circleville's bandbox.

FORMER CHAMP TO TRAIN SIMON FOR LOUIS BOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—James J. Johnston gave the pugilistic archives a quick frisk today and came up with the remains of a legend called Jack Johnson in a maneuver to deprive Joe Louis of the world heavyweight championship, according to the announced intention. Only Negro besides Louis ever to hold the heavyweight title, Johnson is being engaged to school Abe Simon for his challenge at Detroit on March 21.

Johnston's idea, of course, is to get some ballroom for the Detroit fight, and the best way to do it is by engaging Jack Johnson who has been on the outs with Louis and his handlers ever since the latter hit the big time.

Jack Johnson always has insisted that Louis was a second-rate, and has popped off to that effect on the slightest provocation. He now gets his chance to collaborate in the defeat of Louis, except that Johnson, Johnston and Simon all put together couldn't whip one side of Louis with his best punch tied to his other side.

As a matter of fact, it is a little surprising that Mr. James J. would even have Jack Johnson get mixed up with a fighter of his considering the reputation that Jack Johnson built up for himself during his tenure as champion and subsequent thereto.

DOUBLE TECHNICAL K. O. DECREED IN MICHIGAN

DETROIT, Feb. 13—Michigan fight fans today were still talking about the first double technical knockout in the state's boxing history.

The unusual ring drama occurred last night at the Naval Armory in the eighth round welterweight headliner between Pat Carroll, Detroit, and Sammy Sereet, Pittsburgh. Referee Clarence Rosen declared the double technical in the seventh round when it became apparent that both fighters were suffering tremendously from cuts over their eyes.

Mike McCormick One Of Redlegs' Chief Hopes

CINCINNATI, Feb. 13—About a year ago Mike McCormick was just another aspiring young outfielder on the roster of the Cincinnati Reds. The name McCormick, magic to the rabid baseball fans of Cincinnati, caused some attention to be shifted in his direction, but aside from that, very little was written and said about him.

The situation has changed greatly in a year. Today Mike is a fixture in the outfield of the Cincinnati Reds, champions of the world, and is regarded as one of the outstanding young men to enter the majors during the 1940 season.

Mike started the season as the Reds' leftfielder, was benched because of light hitting, then turned right around and won the centerfield job from Harry Craft. The process of winning the centerfield post was accomplished by some heavy clubbing during the last half of the season that raised his mark from an anemic .245 to a healthy .300.

Mike pelted at a .350 pace during the last month of the season, and continued his red hot pace during the world series when he averaged .310.

Bill McKechnie is strong for the 23 year old coast boy, because of his aggressiveness. He plays to win. There's no fooling with him.

WOOSTER SCOTS SHOW STRENGTH IN BIG RED TILT

By International News Service
The Wooster Scots today closed in on the league-leading Mt. Union Purple Raiders in the Ohio Conference basketball race after polishing off Denison's Big Red, 64-36.

It was Wooster's sixth conference win in seven starts and left them less than a game behind the unbeaten Mounts who have won five straight league tilts.

Continuing his great late-season scoring spree, Dick Gemert, Scot forward, swished five field goals and six charity chances to pace all scorers with 16 tallies. Frank Grenert, lanky center from Apple Creek, scored 12 points before leaving the game on personals midway in the final half.

Ike McFadden, Denison's candidate for all-conference forward, paced Sid Jenkin's team with 12 points. The first half was nip-and-tuck with the Scots spurring in the closing minutes before intermission to assume a 25-18 advantage.

Forty-one personal fouls were called. Denison was charged with 22 infractions and lost Tim Wulch and Capt. Rod Harrison while Wooster lost Grenert, Karl Kate and Dick Spornell.

It was Denison's third loss in 8 starts.

With Dick Hartman hitting the hoop for 14 points, Ohio Wesleyan trimmed Baldwin-Wallace, 43-33 in a non-conference tilt. The Bishops led at the half, 27-17, and were never threatened during the final session. Adams scored eight to lead the Bereans.

Akron's Zippers handed John Carroll its sixth consecutive loss by a score of 42-34. With Johnny Lutsch scoring 13 points, the Zippers had little difficulty in turning in their 10th win in 15 games.

Capital went down in defeat for the 11th consecutive time in a 58-31 rout at the hands of Otterbein.

Fraunfelder And Jones Hits; Williamsport Tops Clarksburg

Salt Creek's basketball team held the Jackson Township varsity, 28 to 19, Wednesday night in the Tariton gym. Jones and Fraunfelder, forwards for the Salt Creek five, led the scoring for the winning team.

Two overtimes were necessary before the Salt Creek reserves could win their game from the Jackson second stringers, 8 to 6.

Williamsport's varsity turned on the pressure to win 45-24, Wednesday, from Bob Terhune's Clarksburg squad, the game being the last on the Deercreek schedule for the county tournament. It was played at Williamsport.

The winners played without H. Schein and Carter, two first stringers. Neal Frazier, sharp-shooting forward, tallied 11 buckets from action and added a charity toss to pile up 23 points for the winners.

Clarksburg reserves, a very promising combination, handed the Deercreek lads their first setback of the year in an 18-12 game.

NOTRE DAME TO START SEARCH FOR NEW COACH

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 13—Negotiations for the appointment of a successor to Elmer Layden as athletic director and head football coach at the University of Notre Dame will be started immediately, it was indicated today.

The faculty board in charge of athletics at Notre Dame met for the third time last night, and the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C., vice president of the university and chairman of the athletic board, said "several" names had been recommended and discussed.

This list of eligible candidates, Father Cavanaugh said, will be placed before the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, who will handle the negotiations.

Father O'Donnell said he expects to announce result of his efforts within a week. There was no indication of how many names were under consideration. Layden resigned his Notre Dame post to become commissioner of the National Professional Football League.

ACE PARKER TO MANAGE MINOR LOOP BALL CLUB

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13—Clarence "Ace" Parker, 28, who gained fame as a halfback for the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National Professional Football League last season, has been released from the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, President Bill Ben-swanger said today.

"Ace" has been released to the Portsmouth, Va., club in the Piedmont League, whence he came to the Pirates, because, said Ben-swanger, he would only agree to sign with the Pirates on condition that he be allowed to continue with football after August 15. Frank D. Lawrence, of the Portsmouth team, said "Ace" would be a playing manager.

MacPHAIL CLAIMS THREE CLUB RACE CERTAIN FOR N. L.

By Pat Robinson
NEW YORK, Feb. 13—The National League—like J. Caesar's Gaul—can be divided into three parts this year, according to that eminent linguistic scholar and world traveler, Larry MacPhail, the ebullient boss of the Dodgers.

Before shoving off for Florida and Cuba last night, Larry the Red split the league into three sections, as follows: Cincinnati, Brooklyn and St. Louis in section No. 1; Chicago, Pittsburgh, Boston and New York in section 2 and Philadelphia in section 3.

"Don't quote me as picking the Phillies to finish in the cellar again," Larry pleaded. "You know I got in Dutch picking them to finish there last year. Just say I expect them to wind up in the third section. It sounds better that way."

So there are the Phillies already in the basement without a dissenting voice raised in their behalf.

"I don't care to crawl out on a limb picking a pennant winner," Larry continued, "but I do insist that the race lies among the first three. Mr. Dodgers are the best team in the league outside the pitching. The Reds have the best pitching. But nobody knows when Paul Derringer or Bucky Walters is going to have an off-year and we will have a lot better pitching now that we have Kirby Higbe."

"Nobody knows how good the Cardinals may be but I'd like to take some of those young pitchers off their hands. The Cubs and Pirates are question marks. They may be no better than they were or they may be greatly improved. Both of them have their dubious spots."

BAER BROTHERS KEEPING EYES TURNED ON LOUIS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 13—With Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, uppermost in their minds, Max and Buddy Baer will leave Sacramento for New York tomorrow, Max to fight Lou Nova and Buddy to take on "Two Ton" Tony Galento.

Buddy is scheduled to box Galento on March 26 and Max to engage in a return bout with Nova on April 4. Both encounters will be staged in Madison Square Garden in New York.

Baseball's High Mogul Is Warned

Major League Owners To Contest Ruling That Affects Minor League Athletes

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—An ultimatum will shortly be handed to Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball. It may be couched in the form of a request, but it is none the less an ultimatum.

Major League club owners who feel that the commissioner has invaded their property rights with his recent edict affecting many players brought up for trial next spring are ready to fight. In fact, the fight is already on today and it's a dandy undercover affair.

The issue is whether Landis is empowered to write into the national agreement interpretations of rules that make him a baseball legislator instead of an executive.

About This And That In Many Sports

Coach Roy Black made it known Thursday that Circleville High Tigers are seeking a basketball game with a good opponent for next Tuesday evening on the C. A. C. court. . . . The Tigers have an open date and would like to continue action. . . . Greenfield comes here Friday, February 21, for an SGO loop joust. . . .

Malcolm (Smoky) Williams, Commercial Point's contribution to basketball at Otterbein College, turned in a brilliant performance Wednesday evening when he scored 17 points from a guard position to help the Cardinals turn back Capital University, 58-51. . . . Williams pegged six shots from the field and added five free ones for his splendid total. . . .

Circleville Athletic Club, going great guns in its season's basketball play, takes on the Kahn Jewellers of Columbus Sunday evening in a preliminary to the Waterloo Wonder-San Francisco Wah Kue game booked in K. of C. gym, Columbus. . . . The Wah Kue comes to Circleville Saturday night for one of the big games of the year, the west coast Chinese putting on a great exhibition of the court game wherever they appear. . . .

If you like your basketball hot and terrific, the Circleville High gym will be the place for you next Monday evening when Washington Township acts as host to the Monroe Township quintet. . . . The game is a crucial one for Monroe since it needs a victory to remain on top the heap, providing it turns back New Holland Friday night. . . . Washington bumped off Ashville Tuesday evening in the high gym and promises to be tough for anyone in Circleville's bandbox. . . .

FORMER CHAMP TO TRAIN SIMON FOR LOUIS BOUT

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—James J. Johnston gave the pugilistic archives a quick frisk today and came up with the remains of a legend called Jack Johnson in a maneuver to deprive Joe Louis of the world heavyweight championship, according to the announced intention. Only Negro besides Louis ever to hold the heavyweight title, Johnson is being engaged to school Abe Simon for his challenge at Detroit on March 21.

Johnston's idea, of course, is to get some ballyhoo for the Detroit fight, and the best way to do it is by engaging Jack Johnson who has been on the outs with Louis and his handlers ever since the latter hit the big time.

Jack Johnson always has insisted that Louis was a second-rater, and has popped off to that effect on the slightest provocation. He now gets his chance to collaborate in the defeat of Louis, except that Johnson, Johnston and Simon all put together couldn't punch one side of Louis with his best punch tied to his other side.

As a matter of fact, it is a little surprising that Mr. James J. Johnston would have Jack Johnson get mixed up with a fighter of his considering the reputation that Jack Johnson built up for himself during his tenure as champion and subsequent thereto.

DOUBLE TECHNICAL K. O. DECREED IN MICHIGAN

DETROIT, Feb. 13.—Michigan fight fans today were still talking about the first double technical knockout in the state's boxing history.

The unusual ring drama occurred last night at the Naval Armory in the eighth round welterweight headliner between Pat Carroll, Detroit, and Sammy Seacrest, Pittsburgh. Referee Clarence Rosen declared the double technical in the seventh round when it became apparent that both fighters were suffering tremendously from cuts over their eyes.

FINIS? By Jack Sords

Mike McCormick One Of Redlegs' Chief Hopes

CINCINNATI, Feb. 13.—About a year ago Mike McCormick was just another aspiring outfielder on the roster of the Cincinnati Reds. The name McCormick, magic to the rabid baseball fans of Cincinnati, caused some attention to be shifted in his direction, but aside from that, very little was written and said about him.

The situation has changed greatly in a year. Today Mike is a fixture in the outfield of the Cincinnati Reds, champions of the world, and is regarded as one of the outstanding young men to enter the majors during the 1940 season.

Mike started the season as the Reds' leftfielder, was benched because of light hitting, then turned right around and won the centerfield job from Harry Craft. The process of winning the centerfield post was accomplished by some heavy clubbing during the last half of the season that raised his mark from an anaemic .245 to a healthy .300. Mike pelted at a .350 pace during the last month of the season, and continued his red hot pace during the world series when he averaged .310.

Bill McKeechne is strong for the 23 year old coach boy, because of his aggressiveness. He plays to win. There's no fooling with him.

WOOSTER SCOTS SHOW STRENGTH IN BIG RED TILT

By International News Service
The Wooster Scots today closed in on the league-leading Mt. Union Purple Raiders in the Ohio Conference basketball race after polishing off Denison's Big Red, 64-36.

It was Wooster's sixth conference win in seven starts and left them less than a game behind the unbeaten Mounts who have won five straight league titles.

Continuing his great late-season scoring spree, Dick Gemert, Scot forward, swished five field goals and six charity chances to pace all scorers with 16 tallies. Frank Grenert, lanky center from Apple Creek, scored 12 points before leaving the game on personals midway in the final half.

McKeechne, Denison's candidate for all-conference forward, paced Sid Jenkin's team with 12 points. The first half was nip-and-tuck with the Scots sputtering in the closing minutes before intermission to assume a 25-18 advantage.

Forty-one personal fouls were called. Denison was charged with 22 infractions and lost Tim Wulch and Capt. Rod Harrison while Wooster lost Grenert, Karl Kate and Dick Sporull.

It was Denison's third loss in 8 starts.

With Dick Hartman hitting the hoop for 14 points, Ohio Wesleyan trimmed Baldwin-Wallace, 43-33 in a non-conference tilt. The Bishops led at the half, 27-17, and were never threatened during the final session. Adams scored eight to lead the Bishops.

Akron's Zippers handed John Carroll its sixth consecutive loss by a score of 42-34. With Johnny Lutsch scoring 13 points, the Zippers had little difficulty in turning in their 10th win in 15 games.

Capital went down in defeat for the 11th consecutive time in a 58-31 rout at the hands of Otterbein.

Howard was the leading owner of 1940 and is well on the way to earn the money championship again this year with Mioland and Porter's Cap as his chief money earners.

If Mioland and Porter's Cap can run one-two in the handicap as was the case last year with Seabiscuit and Kayak II, Howard will have won more than $200,000. That's considerable of a start on his rivals and with the big races of the spring, summer and fall for 3-year-olds and handicap horses, it is possible Howard may become the first $500,000 winner in turf history.

SALT CREEK FIVE EDGES JACKSON

Fraunfelter And Jones Hits; Williamsport Tops Clarksburg

Saltcreek's basketball team held the Jackson Township varsity, 28 to 19, Wednesday night in the Tariton gym. Jones and Fraunfelter, forwards for the Saltcreek five, led the scoring for the winning team.

Two overtimes were necessary before the Saltcreek reserves could win their game from the Jackson second stringers, 8 to 6.

Williamsport's varsity turned on the pressure to win 45-24, Wednesday, from Bob Terhune's Clarksburg squad, the game being the last on the Deercreek schedule for the county tournament. It was played at Williamsport.

The winners played without H. Schein and Carter, two first stringers. Neal Frazier, sharp-shooting forward, tallied 11 buckets from action and added a charity toss to pile up 23 points for the winners.

Clarksburg reserves, a very promising combination, handed the Deercreek lads their first setback of the year in an 18-12 game.

NOTRE DAME TO START SEARCH FOR NEW COACH

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 13.—Negotiations for the appointment of a successor to Elmer Layden as athletic director and head football coach at the University of Notre Dame will be started immediately, it was indicated today.

The faculty board in charge of athletics at Notre Dame met for the third time last night, and the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C. S. C., vice president of the university and chairman of the athletic board, said "several" names had been recommended and discussed.

This list of eligible candidates, Father Cavanaugh said, will be placed before the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, who will handle the negotiations.

Father O'Donnell said he expects to announce result of his efforts within a week. There was no indication of how many names were under consideration.

Layden resigned his Notre Dame post to become commissioner of the National Professional Football League.

ACE PARKER TO MANAGE MINOR LOOP BALL CLUB

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 13.—Clarence "Ace" Parker, 28, who gained fame as a halfback for the Brooklyn Dodgers in the National Professional Football League last season, has been released from the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, President Bill Ben-swanger said today.

"Ace" has been released to the Portsmouth, Va., club in the Piedmont League, whence he came to the Pirates, because, said Ben-swanger, he would only agree to sign with the Pirates on condition that he be allowed to continue with football after August 15. Frank D. Lawrence, of the Portsmouth team, said "Ace" would be a playing manager.

THE GOVERNOR of Wisconsin, we read, plans to send generous samples of his state's famed product—cheese—to his fellow governors. To make the idea perfect, the governor of Georgia might add boxes of crackers.

Second 'Bundle' For Isles Mailed

Much Warm Clothing Gathered In City, Prepared For Journey Over Sea

The second box of clothing sent to Bundles for Britain, 112 West 89th Street, New York, by the Circleville chapter of the organization, was in the mail Thursday with a large supply of warm goods for men, women and children of the island empire.

The first Bundle was sent from Circleville January 22. The Circleville unit of the relief organization is located in South Court Street, just south of Main, and is open at all times to accept any gifts that persons interested in aiding the British may wish to make.

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 76

William Sampson with daughter Kathryn and Mrs. Anna Booth were recent guests of his son Kenneth at Ironton. Young Sampson operates a gas tank truck there for the Ford Brothers formerly of here. He makes long distance hauls occasionally covering three or four states. He is not boasting about his good fortune, but glad to say that in the eight years he has been at this truck operating, he has gone through without an accident.

Happened along at just the right time to get in on seeing the dressing process of that much injured hand Leonard Kuhlwein received a short time ago when unloading some farm machinery. It was at Schiff's and Doc said "doing fine" and this Leonard was sure glad to know. The flock of wild ducks, a part of the poultry at Mr. Kuhlwein's farm, is yet there and occasionally take a fly to show bidder and her gang how it is done, he told us.

Isaac Wolford now residing down on the Walters farm on 23 will soon move his household goods and farm tools to the Riegel farm at Cedar Hill. And Charles Brown will remove from the Harley Duvall farm in uptownship Madison, to the Agnes Riegel place along Walnut creek, east of Ashville.

The local school board was in session at the school office Tuesday evening transacting no business except the paying of bills. The Ashville-Harrison board will be in session next Monday evening at same place.

Mrs. H. C. Dana, a sister of T. R. Acord, here, died at her home in Chicago, Tuesday. The death of her husband occurred two years since. There were no children. Of her immediate family there are living four brothers: Tom R. Ashville; Walter, Los Angeles, Cal.; James, Portland, Oregon; Charles, Columbus. Four sisters: Mrs. Nora Smith, Dillon, Mont.; Mrs. Hattie Ebert, Big Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Wilda Zeller, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Maud Dent, Laureville, Ohio. The funeral will be held Friday at Chicago. T. R. Acord will leave for there this evening to attend funeral services.

It was a large crowd of Ashville people which founds its way into the Circleville High Gymnasium the other night to see the two games of basketball between the Bronchos and the Wildcats of Washington Township.

D. H. Ebert, the oldest and probably the most loyal rooster in the town, was there pulling for the boys to win. Then there was the Charles Wilsons, who are also very faithful attendants at all away-from-home games. The Dunnicks, including Charlotte, who is now doing stenographic work in Columbus. The Raders (Ann is one of the cheer leaders), John Smith, "Chod" Pettibone, N. E. Murphy, Paul Nance, Jerry Millar, Charles Eversole, Erville Thomas and several others. A large crowd of high school and grade students were there, too.

In another part of the building an educational meeting was taking place at the same time and when this meeting was over the teachers, principals, superintendents came in just in time to see Washington take a commanding lead in the varsity game. C. E. Mahaffey from Ashville attended this meeting.

Mr. Higley was not present at the game or the meeting, as he attended a board of education meeting at the local school building.

The crowd, needless to say, was

YOUNG SUSPECT SHOT TO DEATH BY PATROLMAN

COLUMBUS, Feb. 13—An unidentified burglar suspect was shot and fatally wounded by Patrolman Earl Rambo early today after the bandit refused to obey Rambo's order to halt.

The patrolman said he surprised the burglar, who appeared to be about 21 years of age, while he was attempting to enter a north side dry goods store. Rambo said he chased the man into a side street and when the bandit failed to heed his warning, fired. The suspect was taken to University Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

MERCURY FALL ON WAY TO OHIO

Gale Moving From West To Drop Temperature After Record Reading

Pessimists in and around Circleville were taking the weatherman at his word Thursday and agreed that the fair weather couldn't last and that Friday would bring colder weather and snow.

The more optimistic, however, were enjoying the spring-like weather while it lasted and telling their neighbors they were sure they had heard robins.

Temperatures, Wednesday, jumped to 59 degrees, the highest February 12 temperature in the history of the local weather bureau, according to Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, local weather observer. They fell to 39 during the night, but promised to climb back up again Thursday to rival Wednesday's high.

In Columbus Wednesday the mercury reached 57, the warmest February 12 in 27 years. In Cleveland, the thermometer reached 52, in Toledo, 51 and at Cincinnati, it soared to 60.

However, an 85-mile-an-hour gale, which was reported in the west, was expected to reach Ohio late Thursday, bringing with it rain and colder temperatures.
